

DMC Books Privacy Policy

~ DianeMCampbell.net ~

Author Diane M. Campbell (aka DMC Books) respects your privacy and is committed to protecting it.

DMC Books keeps all email addresses confidential and does not ever sell, trade, transfer or provide email addresses to third parties. By voluntarily submitting your contact information or other personal information submitted via website forms or by email (comments, reviews, correspondence, etc.), you agree to allow the site to access, store and/or use that information in accordance with applicable federal law for the purposes outlined below.

Newsletter and blog subscribers may opt out of receiving further communications at any time via the unsubscribe instructions at the bottom of newsletters and other correspondence.

DMC Books will only use your contact data as legally permitted. This includes use for the following:

- Periodic email newsletters,
- Correspondence in response to your messages and comments on the site or via email,
- Administration of a survey, promotion or contest offered through the site.

All personal information on the DianeMCampbell.net website is handled according to standard security protocol with strict procedures and security measures. Secure transmission via the internet or email, however, cannot be guaranteed, and any transmission is at your own risk.

This website may include links to other websites that offer products or services. If you follow a link to another site, they may request information from you. The collection and use of your information will be overseen by the privacy policy of that site, and DMC Books accepts no responsibility or liability for policies of other sites.